Like-Kind Exchange Matching™

The theory behind like-kind exchange allows property owners to reinvest their sales proceeds into another like-kind property without subjecting the transaction to taxation. Red Moon Solutions provides the opportunity to take advantage of the like-kind exchange provisions under Internal Revenue Code Sec.1031 through Like-Kind Exchange Matching. This allows them to:

Defer Capital Gains Taxes

Corporations can defer taxable gains, as well as the payment of federal income taxes and some state taxes on like-kind exchange transactions.

Improve Cash Flow

All businesses improve their competitive position in the marketplace when reinvesting tax savings in newer income property.

For example, an asset having a five year MACRS class life and sold in its fourth recovery year will have accumulated depreciation of $23,088.

Purchase	$30,000
1st Year Depreciation	$6,000 (Half-Year Convention)
2nd Year Depreciation	$9,600
3rd Year Depreciation	$5,760
4th Year Depreciation	$1,728 (Half-Year Convention)
Sale Proceeds	$15,000
Accumulated Depreciation	$23,088
Tax Gain	$8,088

As a result, the original $30,000 asset's adjusted basis is $6,912 when sold in the fourth year of life. If it sold for $15,000, the proceeds ($15,000) minus adjusted basis ($6,912) would result in a $8,088 gain. The tax bill, assuming a corporate tax rate of 35%, would be $2,831 ($8,088 multiplied by a tax rate of 35%).

If conducted in a like-kind exchange program, the above disposition's $2,831 income tax liability would be deferred and available for business investment or debt reduction. The business benefit exceeds tax savings since the cash made available is enhanced by either the business investment rate of return or reduced borrowing cost.
